ANALYSIS

- ABBV unveiled its large phase III programme, ROBUST, for ABT-494, the latter aims at recruiting over 4,000 patients in five different studies out of which two have already opened recruitment in the US. ABBV interestingly communicated that the ROBUST programme should include a phase III trial in MTX-naïve patients as well as a head-to-head study vs. Humira. Recall that LLY's baricitinib phase III programme also included both designs. We would wait for Gilead and Galapagos to announce the design of the phase III programme for filgotinib, expected in the upcoming weeks, but now strongly believe that it will include a MTX-naïve population to benefit from a label at least the same as LLY's and ABBV's potential ones. The willingness to put JAK inhibitors prior to MTX in the treatment paradigm highlights physicians' interest in the class as well as the benefit of it over both MTX and anti-TNF α . Upon (i) launch of a phase III programme in this setting and (ii) approval with such a label for filgotinib, this might lead us to revise upward our peak sales (currently at EUR1.5bn in RA). The main reason for this is that, although we do not believe that JAK-inhibitors would effectively be used before MTX in the treatment paradigm considering its cheap price, this might accelerate ramp-up and overall recognition of the class.
- AstraZeneca (BUY – GBp5,550) and Incyte announced the expansion of their collaboration agreement with the launch of a dose-ranging phase I/IIa trial which should assess the safety and efficacy profile of INCB39110 in combination with Tagrisso (osimertinib) as a 2L treatment in EGFR mutation positive NSCLC patients. Incyte INCY should be responsible for conducting the trial. As a reminder, INCB39110 is a selective JAK1 inhibitor currently studied in Pre-clinical PoC in pancreatic cancer and other advanced malignancies while Tagrisso is an anti-EGFR indicated for EGFR mutation-positive patients harbouring the T790M resistance mutation. The latter drug has been approved by the FDA in late 2015 and recommended for approval in Europe by the CHMP. Combinations in immune-oncology have been an area of increasing interest and we would recall that GLPG, aside from having partnered filgotinib to Gilead, has regained the rights on a JAK inhibitor portfolio from GSK in 2014. Hence, we do not rule that the launch of such a combination might trigger interest from other pharma companies or speed-up the launch of other similar trials and believe that GLPG could be a potential partner in this buoyant field.

VALUATION

- These two read-acrosses do not trigger any change in our estimates, however, they reinforce our positive stance on the company.
- We reiterate our BUY rating and EUR64 fair value

Bryan Garnier stock rating system

For the purposes of this Report, the Bryan Garnier stock rating system is defined as follows:

Stock rating

BUY	Positive opinion for a stock where we expect a favourable performance in absolute terms over a period of 6 months from the publication of a recommendation. This opinion is based not only on the FV (the potential upside based on valuation), but also takes into account a number of elements including a SWOT analysis, positive momentum, technical aspects and the sector backdrop. Every subsequent published update on the stock will feature an introduction outlining the key reasons behind the opinion.
NEUTRAL	Opinion recommending not to trade in a stock short-term, neither as a BUYER or a SELLER, due to a specific set of factors. This view is intended to be temporary. It may reflect different situations, but in particular those where a fair value shows no significant potential or where an upcoming binary event constitutes a high-risk that is difficult to quantify. Every subsequent published update on the stock will feature an introduction outlining the key reasons behind the opinion.
SELL	Negative opinion for a stock where we expect an unfavourable performance in absolute terms over a period of 6 months from the publication of a recommendation. This opinion is based not only on the FV (the potential downside based on valuation), but also takes into account a number of elements including a SWOT analysis, positive momentum, technical aspects and the sector backdrop. Every subsequent published update on the stock will feature an introduction outlining the key reasons behind the opinion.
